

Carter Berger

My major is Management and Marketing has shaped my interest in pursuing a career in sales management or business development management.

I am drawn to this field because it combines strategic thinking with relationship-building, two areas where I naturally excel. I have strong leadership skills and enjoy motivating and guiding others toward shared goals, which aligns well with managing teams and driving performance.

My technical background includes a solid working experience with computers and common business software. I have entry level experience with Microsoft Excel, including using basic functions, organizing and analyzing data, creating simple spreadsheets, and applying formulas to support decision-making and reporting.

I am from Hughson, California. It is a small farming town in the valley of California. I enjoy any form of sports whether that's intramurals or watching any sport. I am a part of Greek life here at the university. I am a part of Theta Chi and I aspire to take a leadership role within the next year.
